Air Liner Crash Kills 28

Lone Passenger Saved In London Accident

LONDON (AP)-A twin-engined air liner smashed into a London suburb today, killing 28 of the 29 persons aboard. British European Airways said an engine failed shortly after the plane had taken off from London for Glasgow. The plane, a Dakota, was attempting to return to London.

The air line said it carried 24 passengers, including one infant, and a crew of five.

Extend Search For Missing Hunters' Plane

No Trace Found Of Five Men Lost In Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) - Two full days of intensive aerial searching has failed to uncover a trace of five men aboard a civilian Cessna aircraft which disappeared Saturday on a 250-mile flight over the rugged scrub timber and muskeg country of northern Alberta.

As the R.C.A.F. sent up 13 search planes today relatives of the lost men posted a "substantial" reward for information leading to the discovery of the aircraft.

And five close friends of the missing men prepared to renew their private search—three of them flying their own plane and two others with the R.C.A.F. The search is being conducted on both sides of the Cessna's in-

Soviet Refused Convoy Guard British Charge

LONDON (Reuter) - Western Allied convoys carrying supplier for Russia during the Second World War were refued adequate protection by the Soviets, British government charged to-

Despite the fact Russia at the time labelled the convoy link "a northern saga of heroism, bravery and endurance," the Tovey picture is one of uneasy Russian co-operation. Throughout the operation Rus-

Equalization Plays Part In Increase

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

Assessments on land and improvements in Victoria for 1951 will be increased by a gross total of $5,262,903, A. G. Joyce, assessor and collector, announced today.

Actual cash increase for city coffers over the 1950 levy

Whether this added revenue will enable City Council to reduce its mill rate for the coming year is not known. The sum represents close to three mills.

Asked to comment, Mayor Percy George said there are "so many imponderables" in the civic budget it would be im-possible to say whether there might be a drop in the mill rate. He felt the picture would be clearer in another month.

New home and building construction over the past year and the assessor's equalization and reassessment project now under way are responsible for the increase, Mr. Joyce said.

"This brings the assessment roll to its highest point since 1923, prior to which improvements were not taxable," he said TAXABLE INCREASE

Red Indian Squadron To Train In U.K

OTTAWA (CP) - Canada's ron, No. 421, based at Chatham, N.B., will move to the United Kingdom early next year for an operational training tour of several months, air force headquarters announced today. Both air and ground members of the squadron, com-manded by Sqdn. Ldr. R. T. P. Davidson, D.F.C., of Vancou-ver, will make the shift. Present plans call for it to leave its Vampire jet planes in Canada and be provided in the United Kingdom with fighters - probably jet types—for trainin purposes.

Defence Minister Claxton pre viously had announced R.C.A.F., plans to give its fighter squad-rons operational training in the United Kingdom, but did not identify the first unit which would go. He said one squadron would be sent early next year expected to engage in training in the U.K. and possibly in othe North Atlantic Treaty countries in rotation periods of severa

R.C.N. Policing Off Korea In Peace Unlikely

Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant, chief of naval staff, today clari-fied the Royal Canadian Navy's viewpoint on possible policing of Korean waters by Canadian ships after the present war.
"It seems improbable that we would take a major part in sea-going police duties off Korea, be-cause of the distance our ships would be from their base. There are huge U.S. bases in the Far East, and a British base at Hongkong," he pointed out.

The admiral added, however, that the decision would rest with the Canadian government and the United Nations

Canadian sailors now engaged in the Korean war may receive campaign medals from the United Nations to show their part in the action.

Queried on the point during a press interview at H.M.C. Dockyard today, Vice-Admiral Harold T. W. Grant, Chief of Canada's Naval Staff, said he had heard nothing official of any plans for recognition of service in the war, but he assumed campaign medals would be issued by the United Nations.

CRINOLINES AND ANTHEMS

FROM A READER of this column I recently received a copy of a London Times of about a century ago—the date is missing, the copy having suffered some dilapidation in the course of time. But much of the letterpress is intact, and I have enjoyed many a chuckle over its quaint news items and advertisements.

Its references to crinolines are particularly interesting at the present time, when Queen Elizabeth is showing a marked preference for this type of gown for evening wear, judging by recent photographs of Her Majesty in exquisite creations by Norman Hartnell.

DISTURB THE POISE

HERE IS WHAT an advertiser of the early Victorian era offers in The London Times to which I allude:

"The patent ONDINA crinoline does away entirely with the unsightly results of ordinary hoops and so perfect are the wave-like bands that a lady may ascend a steep stair, pass to her seat at the Opera, or occupy the fourth seat in a carriage, without the slightest inconvenience to herself, and without provoking rude remarks from the onlookers. Thus modifying in an important degree those peculiarities of fashion which tend to disturb the poise of gentlewomen."

Dame Fashion has foisted so many peculiar fashions on us women since then that it has to be something that would knock your eye out to excite rude comments from blase on-lookers these days. To say nothing of the fact that gentle-women—if there are any left—have acquired a protective poise rious to the comments of mere onlooker

'PUNCH' JUBILANT

APROPOS of the crinoline, a later edition of The London A Times of that period in its fashion notes announces that Queen Victoria had given them up and refused to wear one not because Her-Majesty would have been called upon to ascend a steep stair or take the fourth seat of a carriage, you may be But whatever the reason, her decision sealed the crino doom, and "Punch" celebrated the occasion with a parody of the National Anthem which would be looked upon as treason some sticky people today. It ran:

"Long Live our gracious Queen, Who won't wear crinoline, God save the Queen! May her example spread, Broad skirts be narrow-ed, Long trains be shorten-ed,

"May dresses flaunting wide Fine figures cease to hide, Confound those hoops and things, Frustrate their horrid strings And India-rubber rings— Deuce take them all."

THAT OLD LONDON newspaper was evidently published just after the Good Queen—in whom this city of Victoria should have a profound interest for more reasons that one—had taken her first railway ride. And, in the light of what has happened to transportation since that day, there is something comical about the grave fears expressed in the editorial column as to the royal risk thus taken:

"We are aware that every precaution was taken by the management of the Great Western Railway, and we are not less aware of the absence of all fear from the mind of our beloved Queen. But her death would be a calamity of such magnitude that we cannot but feel that these Royal trips should be, if not wholly abandoned, only resorted to in cases of extreme emergency."

MEN AND WHISKERS

WE CAN ENJOY a laugh at the expense of the men of the Victorian era, too. Here is an advertisement that speaks

"Fox's Formula: Hundreds of gentlemen can testify to the wonderful success of Fox's Formula, which is guaranteed to grow luxurious whiskers and moustaches on the smoothest skin."

And I love this allusion to the propensity of people to pur-loin umbrelias, then, as now, considered an indispensable adjunct to the well-dressed Englishman's wardrobe:

"It being notorious that umbrellas are more frequently mis-appropriated than any other part of a gentleman's wardrobe, the attention of the public is respectfully requested to this new patent umbrella, the utility of which is obvious from the fact that the owner, by unscrewing the handle, renders it utterly useless to any-one but himself."

Which reminds me that it rains on the just as well as the unjust—but it rains more on the just if he happens to leave his umbrella within reach of the unjust.

Our Share Of The Burden

THERE WAS LITTLE TO SURPRISE Canadians in Finance Minister Ab-bott's indication that income taxes will be higher next year. Anyone who has given even casual heed to the mounting tempo of the Dominion's defence pro-gram must realize that such an effort will cost money.

will cost money.

The prospect of having to dig a little deeper to finance our national security and participate adequately in United Nations and North Atlantic Pact plans for halting aggression will be balanced by the understanding that little if any choice is offered in these times. To continue in a state that could only be to rely to too great an extent on the strength of Britain or the United States to rescue us from any military emer-gency, would be unthinkable.

There was some surprise—not unmixed with relief—when the last budget ent produced only minor changes.

What next year may bring, much as a peace-loving nation dislikes constant military preparedness, will still leave us in an enviable position com-pared with most other countries in the world. Viewed in that light, contribution to defence is a privilege rather than an

Two-Party System Sustained

WHILE THE QUEBEC RIDINGS OF WHILE THE QUEBEC RIPHINGS AND R will now be represented in the House of Commons by "Independent" Liberals, Commons by "Independent" Liberals, both of whom declared themselves in the by-election campaigns which ended yes-terday as "straight" Liberals. The nominees to whom the St. Laurent govern-ment gave its blessing ran second in each case. To all intents and purposes, however, the administration's strength— already top-heavy—has suffered no real diminution as a result of these latest appeals. Out of a membership of 262 the Prime Minister still has 185 supporters.

No candidates were entered by the Progressive Conservative Party in either of the Quebec ridiags. In the Ontario constituency of Welland, left vacant by the death of Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Liberal nominee Dr. McMillan polled 19,352 votes against a total of 13,037 for Opposition Leader George Drew's standard-bearer. Both C.C.F. and Labor-Progressive candidates lost their deposits. gressive candidates lost their deposits.
All in all, therefore, yesterday's polling politically in the Dominion. It has merely politically in the Dominion. It has mere added strength to the two-party system

This Is Canada - Not Russia

PARLIAMENTS IN CANADA AND Great Britain have gone into secret session in times of national and inter-national crises. Such a procedure has been dictated by emergent circumstances. But when local civic bodies, especially those dealing with public funds, arrogate to themselves the right to exclude tax-payers from their deliberations, they expose themselves immediately to justi criticism.

In other words, Councillor Sydney Pickles, president of Saanich's Ward Six Ratepayers' Association, need not apologize for objecting strenuously to the decision of the Apportionment Board to hold all future meetings of that organization behind closed doors. Chairman William Crouch has explained that there is a "terrific amount of work to get through," and he felt closed meetings would facilitate progress. So be it.

But there is much to be said in support of Mr. Pickles' contention that "all the chairman has to do is to rule that spectators are not allowed to comment or question during the meetings." Noof the Apportionment Board should be turned into a public forum, where every Tom, Dick and Harry could say his piece -relevant or otherwise to matters under discussion—but every citizen of the important community of Saanich should at least be permitted to listen and to form his or her own opinion on what goes on. To deny them this right is to subscribe

Why Not Legalize Color, Too?

THE STATUS OF MARGARINE IN British Columbia has not been altered by the Privy Council's ruling re-affirming provincial authority over its manufacture and sale. The decision from the law Lords merely drives the argument home.

The butter substitute, properly identified, is acknowledged as a staple in households of this province. It seems pertinent to ask, however, how long it will be before the spread is given the color which most purchasers appear to prefer. It is illegal to retail yellow margarine. To overcome that difficulty, manufacturers enclose a special non-injurious dye in the packages. That is injurious dye in the packages. That is kneaded or mixed into the product at the wish of the housewife. Why should the extra labor be forced upon her? As long as the spread is so much cheaper than butter, it is going to be bought by those who feel they cannot afford the more expensive dairy product. If the purchaser wants it yellow, why shouldn't it be that color? Pale butter is given a warmer hue artificially.

Must They Be That Cynical?

WHATEVER THE VICTORIA COUNTY Young Liberal Association might have had in mind when it conceived the lution urging that the tion be fingerprinted in the event of an emergency, the suggestion is repugnant to Canadians steeped in democratic tradition. Such action, no matter how it might be disguised, smacks of the practice of a police state.

During the war the government insisted on national registration. Everyone was required to fill out a form setting identification. The authorities had good reason to require that procedure.

It nevertheless may have caused offence to many of our people who consider themselves citizens of a free country.

It is not our purpose here to discuss the merits or otherwise of that policy. It does seem desirable, however, to call upon the Young Liberals to give second ought to their fingerprinting resolu-on. That is a method of identification which police use for criminals. How do the Young Liberals hope to get over that connotation? Surely the young people have not reached that cynical distrust in democratic living which requires the "Big-Brother-Is-Watching-You" technique,

Postwar Cut In Wool Stocks Brought Today's High Price

THE PROSPECT is that a $10 pair of pants-men's pants, that is-which now costs $18 may soon cost up to $30 in the United States. Translating this into suits of clothes, a prewar wool suit which used to cost $45 now costs near $75 and may go to $90 next year.

This whole business is due to sharp increases in the price of raw wool. Last January, the best grade of scoured wool sold on the Boston market for $1.58 a pound. At a recent open market wool auction in London, the price soared to nearly $3 a pound on some of the finer lots.

All this is having its effect not only on the cost of living, but on the cost of the war. If increasingly large armies have to be winter-uniformed in $3 a pound wool, if runs into money. There are about five pounds of raw wool in a uniform and another five pounds in an overcoat, to say nothing of the blankets.

At the end of the last war there were about three billion pounds of wool in stockpile reserve. The wool trade figured that at normal rates of consumption, it would take 12 years to get rid of this surplus. Wool growers cut down on pro-duction and sheep herds were reduced. So great was the pent-up demand for wool clothing, however, that this big surplus was used up in less than five years. With production at new low levels, along came new war scares, in-creasing the demand. That's what shot up the price.

So acute is the world wool supply situation, an international study group is meeting in London. The 20 principal wool-using and producing countries are represented. An effort will be made to allocate available supplies at prices agreed on by the allocators. But all such price-fixing moves will be fought by the Australians, who are the principal wool producers. They are more than raking in the dough in the present free market auctions.

INCREASING PRODUCTION

As for increasing production, that takes time, and Mother Nature can't be hurried. Or maybe she can. Experiments are now being made by Armour and Company to increase lamb production. Using hormones, the aim is to make ewes produce two lambs a year, in place of the usual one. But this experiment is not far enough along to tell how successful it will be.

Main reliance on making available wool supplies cover as many backs as possible is being placed on still greater use of synthetic fibres for blending with wool to make suiting...

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

IF MY EYES do not deceive me, there is a woman in California who wants to see Brentwood College rise like a phoenix (although perhaps not like Phoenix, Ariz.) from its dead ashes. Fancy that, as a well-known Phoenix-financier once remarked. Ariz., Ariz., thou phoenix! This woman, according to these highly respect-able pages now confronting you, dear lasses and lads, is owner of the property over which dead and alive and dead-alive Old Brentonians once wound their weary way.

MAN WHO once went to Brentwood A MAN WHO once went to Brentwood Is known, you must realize, as an Old Brentonian. If I follow the argument right home (which God in His mercy may well forbid), a man from a wood is an onian. That argument, pushed home (stop pushing, fellows, there's room for all), would make a man from Hollywood a Hollyonian. It sounds like a cross between the holly and the like a cross between the holly and the

I know full well the carol about the holly and the ivy, and sing it each De-cember until I am quite hoarse. But the holly and the onion? No. And just try reversing the argument, without clashing too many gears. A man called a Patagonian would then be a man from Patagonian would then be a man from Patagonian would be a man from Patagonian tagwood. This sounds even sillier than the world happens to be, if possible.

MISS UNKEFER of Santa Barbara, as reported here by Don Ingham, feels that a revived Brentwood would be an institution for the good of humanity. I, as a Child of Darkness, may know much less about this in my generation than the Children of Light, including Miss Unkefer. But in one way, and one alone, I have (one might say) the bulge on Miss Lukefer, and thest that I went Unkefer, and that is the fact that I went to Brentwood while she didn't. Indeed, that is why I am now one of the Children of Darkness, wiser in my generation than the Children of Light, though not any-

THERE ARE two things to consider here (O ye phoenixes of Old Brentonia!). One is this: if you can continue the tradition in spite of a hundred changes and gaps, how do you know your tradition is worth keeping? And if, on the other hand, it has been impossible to keep a single tradition from 1923 until now, why call a new school Brentwood at all? The only thing that all Brentonians have in common is the name it-self. But this would be true if they were Old Phoneyonians from Phoneywood, or Old Matchonians from Matchwood, or Old Gopheronians from Gopherwood. I may be dense, but I cannot see the good to humanity in that. (And if I am dense, who educated me?)

One day, long ago, I went in from Brentwood to dine at the Empress with Benny Nicholas, editor of this journal. (He had been a colleague of my father's about a dozen years before that, when Benny was secretary to the Minister of Mines at Ottawa while my father was Deputy Minister.) He asked me "Well, what do you think of Brentwood? But no, perhaps that isn't a fair question.'
Under the circumstances, it wasn't.

NEWS INDEED

"SHAH TO MARRY brunette," says a headline. Well, no news is good news, I reckon, but please don't get the idea that this is the first Shah to marry a brunette. F wouldn't like anyone to go home with the idea that Persians, especially Shahs, have been marrying nothing but blondes these last two or three thousand years. Far from it. GO AHEAD AND DO IT

THE MAN WHO keeps singing about Irene claims he has a great notion to jump in the river and drown. But he never does it. How much better the world would be if he quit singing and jumped. He's not sincere. A friend of mine once was hostess to a moody girl who announced daily that she was going to bump herself off. Finally my friend got of all these broken promises and said: "Well, why don't you go ahead and do it, instead of talking so much about it?" The girl got huffy, and said: "Just for that, I won't do it at all now, so

NEWSPAPERMAN MAKES GOOD

CANADIAN newspaperwoman now in England writes home to say she has dined at The Times office in the very room where Shakespeare wrote Hamlet. It is my own opinion that Ham let was written by James I, author of Macbeth. But if Billy really did write it, I bet he wrote half of it in the Mermaid Tavern and the other half back-stage at the Globe. Still, it's nice to know Bill was a newspaperman, and working for The Times at that. His slight tendency to preach probably came

Under the title—"Looking Ahead"—in your issue of Oct. 10, your correspondent C. M. Cadwallader most emphatically states that because it is seemingly predicted in the Bible, we are almost du still another world war. But 30 years ago we fought a war to end war, and the more recent war was ostensibly fought to defend and preserve our freedom and nocracy. Now we are being told we have no personal freedom, no liberty or choice; and having lost the last two wars since war is not ended; and we are not free: we must fight still another. But for what this time? Is it just because some book, some writings of whose correct translations we are doubtful, says we must? That would be submitting to a dictatorship, succumbing to a totalitarianism against which we have already fought many wars. Despite what the Bible says, we know that wars are first fought in the minds of men, and if minds are sufficiently peaceful predictions of wars w 4010 Grange Rd. L. J.

COMMENDS PRODUCTION

I listened recently to a broadcast eard over CKDA, of "The Hound of The program is worthy of comment, because it is a good thing to have great poetry heard by the listening public; and this poem of Francis Thompson is among the greatest of lyrics.

The reading and speaking on the pro-am were above the average, being marked by understanding, intelligent expression and simplicity of style. There was none of the sepulchral tone, affectation, down-dropping of the voice, harshness or stridency of voice, or monotony of expression, heard so often in the voice and speech of badly trained, half-trained or untrained speakers and readers.

The reading and speaking of lyrics is a fine art, and should not be attempted except by those who have learnt to express poetry in clear and rhythmical speech, with musical tone in the speakvoice and, above all, with understanding, intelligent expression and simplicity of style.

MARION J. ORD. 1005 Cook St.

I am curious to know who authorized Col. Carl R. Boehm of Ottawa, who seems to be the senior officer so far with the Canadian contingent in Fort Lewis, Wash., to fly the Canadian Red Ensign over his camp. To fly this ensign on a Canadian merchant marine ship would be quite in order, but it is not the official flag of Canada and has no place over a military post, especially when that post is on foreign soil.

In the interests of good form and correct military procedure army headquarters in Ottawa ought, and I trust they will, immediately issue instructions to Col. Boehm to strike the Red Ensign and break out the Union Jack, which is the official flag of the British Commonwealth of Nations of which Canada has the honor of being a part.

It is unfortunate that so many Canadians, who have never been out of Canada, and whose knowledge of the world is so lamentably small, are not aware that the Union Jack is not merely the flag of England but the whole Empire, and Canada shares the right to defend it. (Unfortunately Canada did not distinguish herself in the defence of this flag in the last war in comparison with the other parts of the Empire, including little New Zealand, who had double the casualties of Canada with a population of one-sixth this country.) Nevertheless in all of the Empire's wars since Canada became a Dominion, some Canadians have fought and died for that flag.

My grandfather died in the Boer War. my father was wounded at Ypres in 1916, and I was wounded in the Italian campaign of the last war. These soldiers who have gone before would turn in their graves if they knew the flag for which they fought and spilled their blood was discarded for a piece of bunting

Let us see that the flag which the soldiers of Canada have respected in the past goes to its rightful place on the masthead and stays there. Let us be proud of our place as a part of that great Empire in which we have our roots, bering that without it we should only be a very small and unimportant only be a very small and an arrivation backwoods country, who at the first sign of an invasion by a foreign power should have to scream for help to the mother country and our U.S. cousins to the south for we could not defend ourselves for 24 hours! Buying The New Fall Hat must make up his mind whether or not he should purchase a new fall hat.

This might appear to be at first glance a small matter, but it is not.

Nor is it a matter understood by woman, who, if she hears her spouse wondering aloud whether his old hat will do for another year, will push him firmly in the direction of a hatter, urging him by all means to substitute a new and elegant hat for that shapeless thing (thing is woman's word for any article of male apparel that has been worn into a comfortable state) he put away last ring when the straw parade began. COMPLEX PROCESS

To woman—who may buy a hat be-cause a ridiculous feather tickles her cause a ridiculous feather tickles her fancy or because she is out of sorts and thinks a new hat will restore her good humor or because when her feet tire she just happens to sit down for a moment in a chair hard by a place where hats are sold—the cerebrations involved in the male's decision to buy or not to buy a new hat may seem to be unnecessarily complex and to offer evidence of an un-manly irresolution. But in the case of the male there is more to the buying of a new hat than mere woman may perceive. SOON PARTED

Last year's hat and woman are soon parted, but between last year's hat and man there is a strong bond, long in the knitting.

A man's social status is not impaired if he appears with last year's hat on his head; indeed, the man wearing last year's hat proclaims to all that he is thrifty; that he is alert, since he has been able to cling to his headgear in spite of absent minded citizens who are wont to enter restaurant or barber shop wearing a hat 7½ in size and who leave with one measuring 7%; and that either he is remeasuring 7%; and that either he is resourceful, having stood unmoved before feminine entreaties to throw that thing away, or that he is a bachelor.

Travel Diary

Another in a Series By I. NORMAN SMITH Associate Editor of The Ottawa Journal KARACHI, Pakistan—It has been hard

KARACHI, Pakistan—It has been hard here to get people to talk of anything except the dispute with India over Kashmir. Not that it is a new subject; on the contrary it has been going on since October, 1947, two months after India and Pakistan set up separate nations. But it is the question of the hour right now, for yet another United Nations effort at conciliation has just failed. Kash has just failed. Kash-mir is a former princely state up in the northwest corner of 4,000,000 people in its 84,000 square miles. Its Hindu ruler elected to put his state into India, but 75 percent of the people are Moslems and already 8,000,000 Moslems have trekked out of India to Pakistan because of religious and civil try of the Northwest Frontier country of Pakistan moved in on Kashmir in Octo-ber, 1947, helped by Pakistan. India retaliated by moving its troops into the country and established a pro-Indian Moslem leader, Sheikh Abdullah, to rule the land. Fighting broke out openly SOOTHED FEELINGS

The United Nations tried to soothe things with a succession of efforts. By January, 1949, it had negotiated a cease-fire on a line that gives India roughly three fourths of the state and Pakistan the western and northern fourth. India's part is the better part.

Kashmir is of vital importance to rivers-the Chenab and Jhelum-which into Pakistan and water her agriculture. And Pakistan is an agricultural country. India has already blocked, par-tially, some waterflow. And strategically or militarily Kashmir dominates Pakis-

Liaquat Ali hoped Canada and the Commonwealth and the United Nations would put power politics aside and come out on the side of fairness and right. He was confident Nehru would succumb to such pressure. But if the world would not say "no" to Nehru, Pakistan would anyway, come what bloodshed there may. It is a costly, fearful cancer in this sub-continent. It may be that from Karachi I have seen only the Pakistan side. But in truth most of my comments have foundation or confirmation in the report of UN's own mediator. It seems to me from here that it will be in India, under the great spell of that huge coun try and the great figure of Nehru, one will be more likely to adopt a biased viewpoint. Particularly because, for global political reasons, UN and the Commonwealth and Canada want to keep Nehru on their side. But if you can look at Kashmir without relating it to admittedly important external considerations, it is hard to avoid the uneasy feeling that in this particular issue the democratic side is winking at Nehru's

In Rimouski, when counting stopped for the night, Mr. Rousthat had consistently returned Liberal members to the Commons since it was established in 1896, Hector Dupuis, a civil employee, won over four opponents. Although he ran as an Independent Liberal, he said in his campaign speeches that he was a "straight Liberal."

In Rimouski, when counting stopped for the night, Mr. Rouseau had a 359-vote lead over Maurice Tessier, the official Liberal candidate. There were still five of 138 polls to report. Mr. Rousseau had 9,468 votes to 9,109 for Mr. Tessier. Lucien Robitaille, an Independent, was running a poor third with 1,068 votes. There were 27,000 eligible voters.

In Rimouski, a seat that had returned 19 Liberals and four ONTARIO POLLING Conservatives in elections since 1867, the winner was Joseph Herve Rouseau. Like Mr. Dupuis, he opposed an official Liberal candidate, but still designated himself as a Liberal.

In Welland, Dr. McMillan polled 19,352 votes to 13,037 for Sam Hughes, Progressive Conservative Welland lawyer, Melandate himself as a Liberal.

COLEMAN'S COLUMN

By JIM COLEMAN

It is obvious that another cycle is complete when you learn that the latest and most successful importation of The Wrestling Trust is Timothy Geohagen, a Doctor of Philosophy from Dublin University. In the past half-century, The Wrestling Trust has imported dentists, chiropractors, carpenters, lumberjacks, hodcarriers, acrobats, process-servers, physic-therapists, wine-salesmen, hop-pickers and the chorus line from the Folies

Bergere. However, this is the first occasion on which they have managed to sneak a fully-grown Doctor of Philosophy through the Immig

It is singularly appropriate that, during his American tour, the Dublin savant is being managed by Ed. "Strangler" Lewis who, in his own right, is regarded as an outstanding philosopher. Ed's philosophy is simple and direct, to wit: if you lie on top of 'em, they can't get up."

Since Lewis is built on the generous dimensions of a Sherman tank, his philosophy has stood the test of years and, undoubtedly, the day will come when you'll find him in the text books, along with Kant, Aristotle and Plato.

When The Wrestling Trust was straining every blcep to popularize its pastime in the late '20s and early '30s, vast herds of American collegians were corralled. None of these, we regret to report, approached the intellectual or academic standing of Dr. hagen from Dublin University.

Sonnenberg Most Colorful

The most colorful recruit of that era was Gus Sonnenberg from Dartmouth College in the White Mountains of New Hampshire Gus was exposed to as much culture as he could assimilate at outh, for four years. Jealous fellow-students have suggest that Sonnenberg stayed in college for four years simply because he disintegrated opposing football linemen much more effectively that the college's nuclear physics staff disintegrated the atom.

Another collegiate-wrestler of the period was George Wilson, who had been an All-America half-back at University of Washington. Wilson usually carried a copy of The Nation or the New Republic in his jacket pocket but it was believed that he employed these magazines to fan himself on long, hot train trips.

Only a few years ago, The Wrestling Trust, at a mass press conference, introduced a new wrestling phenom whose name has escaped us. He was reputed to be a prolific writer of fiction; the inventor of a mechanical lung and the inventor of new armaments which were on the triple hush list of the U.S. government.

The interview was marred slightly by the fact that one cynic asked: "If he's so smart, why ain't he wealthy?"

From a purely personal viewpoint, we're not sure that wrestling can stand much erudition. Dr. Geohagen's intellectual attainments can stand much erudition. Dr. Geonagen's intellectual attainments undoubtedly will earn him some critical approval in the lay-press but the general public will be acutely suspicious of a professional wrestler who packs too many college degrees into his tights.

Dr. Geonagen is constructed impressively but how can he be expected to compete for public approval with his occasional vis-a-vis.

one named Yukon Eric, who strides through Canadian streets in his bare feet and nude to the waist? Yukon Eris is a man who captures the imagination for he sleeps habitually in a bathtub, padded generously with ice-cubes and dives through blizzards in an open roadster.

Youssof Was Too Smart

The Wrestling Trust consistently has been unfortunate in its importation of intellectuals. Many years ago, Youssof, the Terrible Turk, was persuaded to visit North America. Youssof was a profound monetary expert who, despite his faith in kopeks, iira, francs and the pound sterling, viewed the American banking system in great alarm. He refused to accept paper currency for his wrestling appearances in the United States and insisted upon being paid in coins which he carried in a money belt, around his waist.

His scorn for North American democratic practice proved his loing. He was traveling home to Europe on a ship which struck an iceberg. Strapping his money belt about him, he poised on the rail of the ship and took what probably was the record high dive in history. He split the waters cleanly and, aided by the weight of gold coins, presumably didn't stop until he hit the ocean-bed.

In importing Dr. Geohagen from Ireland, the directors of Th Trust are ignoring the fact that the success of their business has been due, in great measure, to the activities of North career was devoted to perfecting the application of a hot-foot to other unsuspecting students.

Was As Bad As Patient

Fortunately (or unfortunately) Steele never grew up. One of his epic feats was the administration of Mickey Finns to eight burly fellow-wrestlers who were traveling on a plane equipped only to carry five passengers. On another occasion, he visited a wrestler who had suffered a nervous breakdown and had been confined to a mental hospital. After 15 minutes of listening to Steele's badinage, the patient shook his head sorrowfully and said: "Ray, you'd better come in here and stay with me."

Or, there was the night when Man Mountain Dean wrestled at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. Dean was so stout at that time that he couldn't see his own feet. Accordingly, he wore slip-on shoes with no laces.

While Dean was wrestling, Steele drove stout spikes through the shoes, fastening them to the floor. After the bout, Dean dressed and then, having admired himself in the mirror, stepped into his

Reaction to the new no-icing and delayed-penalty rules as adopted this season by the Pacific Coast Hockey League is varied. Some of the fans favor the regulations while others are critical. Actually it is a little too early form a concrete opinion on the changes. The players, like the fans, are still unfamiliar with the new version of play and until such time as they become accustomed to playing under the new code, it is only fair to view the rules with an open mind. Both new rules were placed in the book with the object of speeding up the play. If that is accomplished the regulations are worth something. Whether or not the calibre of hockey suffers will be up to the directors of the league to determine. Having discussed the rules with players of various teams, it was no surprise to learn their opinions differed. But once again it was a case of their being strange to the new regulations. With many of the Victoria fans having expressed the desire to familiarize themselves with the new rules, we decided to print them

Icing the puck shall not be permitted at any time. When a club is guilty of icing the puck, play shall be stopped and ng faceoff shall be at one of the circles adjacent to the goal of the guilty club. In the past clubs have been permitted to ice the puck when they were shorthanded. Icing the puck means the deliberate shooting of the puck from behind the centre red line over the opponent's goal line, not in the goal. If one of the defending players, other than the goalkeeper, could have played the puck before it crossed the goal line it shall not be considered icing. Icing the puck shall not be called when a player attempts to make a pass to a player who is onside and the receiving player misses the pass and it goes beyond the goal line.

BE A LARGE PART OF Unloading ingots final inspection Numinum plant-Kingston, Out. Half-way House between Aluminum Ingot and You With an axe and a few other hand tools, our ancestors could chop down trees and make houses, chairs, bowls, canoes - lots of things. But all these were heavy and had many other disadvantages. It's different now that we have aluminum - which is light, rustless, won't burn, doesn't rot . . . is practically everlasting. It takes a whole series of unusual and complicated "tools" to make things of aluminum. To start with, it takes ships to import the ore, ports for unloading, powerhouses for electricity, smelters . . . all these to produce the aluminum itself, still only in ingot form. Next, it takes a plant like the Alcan one at Kingston to receive these ingots from the smelters and to shape the metal into tubes, sheets, extrusion forgings and foil. Finally, it takes more than 1000 Canadian manufacturers to form all these into chairs, kitchen utensils, building materials, aeroplanes, etc. - things Canadians use every day. So, you see, this Kingston plant is "half-way" house between ingot and finished article, between the original aluminum and you. It is a link in the chain of "tools" with which, over the last fifty years, Canadians have equipped themselves to make aluminum articles — creating work and wages for thousands, bringing greater convenience and comfort to modern living.

The first time I held a live microphone in my hands, I tingled all over. I'm excitable. Then, too, I was standing on the wet concrete of the Crystal Garden swimming deck and there was a short circuit in the public address system.

Guys like me

heard away from home — nobody listens to me there — need microphones. We can't depend on vocal power like that of Attorney-

General Gordon Wismer, who, in court or legisla ture, declaims that comes from sheer volume of sound. His arguments are good too. We can't stand on a platform and roll out booming syllables like ex-Times man Ted Fox, or young Dave Stock, "the Voice," in our newsroom. We can't amaze anyone with our tone, like Mayor Percy George, who is the "multum in parvo" type when it comes to speech

WE WHO HAVE more modes pipes, have to turn to artificial in a large room or by a gathering out of doors. We're dependent on mikes. That saves a lot of wear and tear on the larvnx, but on us.

A mike multiplies sound so barks out at a crowd in a way to knock listeners back in their chairs. It highlights every squeak in a high-pitched voice and exaggerates every accent. Put Archie McKinnon before a mike and the instrument gives him back the Scotch burr he began to lose when he stepped onto Canadian soil in his early teens.

There are fancy little whistles and whoops in a mike and its attached equipment, too — small grace notes that come unhidden to give gay variety to speech and

DOWN AT THE Garden you can really have yourself a time with a microphone. Excess moisture and a loose connection can give the public address can give the public address system baffling powers. You may be murmuring into the mouth-piece, your lips brushing it, when for some unaccountable reason, for some unaccountable reason, a wayward current decides to explore the same mouthpiece. You recoil as if youve kissed a ser-

A man doesn't stand much chance of being electrocuted that way - leastways, I hope he doesn't. But it's more tickle that can race along the cord and shoot up his arm when he's fondling a microphone and standing on wet concrete. And it isn't always Sunday School glish that comes bouncing out

There are all sorts of little dif. feature. After the sh ferences that can occur between a mike and a novice. About a year ago at the Garden, a wellknown local woman reached for the mike to give a message to a gala audience. Forgetting the strength it lends the ordinary shouted what was meant to be a cheery greeting to

THE EFFECT was amazing She almost blasted the spectators out of their seats and frightened herself half to death. From then on she waged a gallant struggle with tone modulation. It was quite a battle, but the mike won.

Playing announcer at a Garden gala, gives a man a sense of power. He speaks and the crowd has to listen-almost always There are exceptions, though. Let him be excitable, like me, and he's certain to pull the cord away from its fastenings just when he has something to tell the

It works this way: An announcer builds up a race, he works towards the climax as the swimmers are thrashing into the finish. So he can see all the de edge, giving a running com-mentary as he moves. At the bit too far. The connection

ALL THAT VERBAL drama he's pouring into the mouthpiece has become a very strict secret has become a very stret secret between the metal fixture and himself. Up in the back rows, fans may be standing on tiptoe, trying to catch a glance of the finish, and waiting for his an ninsh, and waiting for his an-nouncements. By that time he's back at his table, unscrewing couplings and trying to get them back into working order. What couplings and trying to get them back into working order. What he's saying as he does that shouldn't go over a public address system at all—not even at a stag smoker. Like Tennyson the announcer is longing, but the announcer is longing, but the most own with a damaged wing.

The bird is the victim of a sleep. announcer is longing.

TRAVELS 4,500 MILES IN SIX DAYS BY THUMB

Biggest surprise Mrs. E. Bevan-Pritchard has received in last three years came when her son, Douglas, walked into her home at 2820 The Rise.

Douglas, who is serving with the R.C.A.F., had hitchhiked nearly 4,500 miles from Chatham, N.B., to Victoria via the U.S. in six days to see his mother and friends. On three weeks' leave, he left his wife and two children in Chatham.

Well known in Victoria sport circles, Douglas is a veteran of the Second World War. He was taken a prisoner of war by the Germans twice. He escaped the first time.

"I was certainly glad to see him," said Mrs. Bevan-chard. "The last time I saw him was three years ago." His mother said he now was working in order to pay for

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Salesman, 39, Married and A Father, Narrates His Anxious Experience With Analysis

Dear Mary Haworth: Your frequent suggestion of psychiatric help impels me to state my own experience, as a warning that this type of treatment isn't always beneficial. I am 39, married, the father of an infant son, and a salesman by occupation. I am employed by a large firm, and for several years I was top producer on the sales staff, but this past year I've slipped a little.

leaving, all Mary Haworth symptoms returned. I reported back to the hospital and was told that intensive psychoana lysis was indicated. This I under took as the private patient of a staff doctor, making five or six visits a week, an hour each.

Analyzing myself, the doctor merely offering helpful refer ences, I became aware that my suffering was a form of selfroot of this; and for a time this awareness helped me to change the situation. After 18 months I discontinued treatment and didn't need any more for seven months. Then I turned to another doctor, and again there was short-term improvement. He sometimes used narcosis to help me talk; and I became increasingly conscious of the self-pun-ishment pattern, but by now the awareness only increased the

HE FELT BETTER BEFORE ANALYSIS

To make a long story short, prior to analysis I was able to enjoy life somewhat, and only certain situations aroused anxiety; but now I am disturbed by almost everything. Before, I man aged to put up a good front on the job; now I can't. I am still working with the help of sedatives which give temporary re-lief, but right now the depression and tension are terrific, and the knowledge that nobody but me can change the picture, and I seem unable to, makes me feel

Recently I talked to the head loctor at the hospital again, who said mine was one of the fev cases where treatment did mor

TODAY'S RECIPE

SQUASH PUDDING

Two cups cooked, sieved quash, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, % cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup raisins.

Mix squash with milk, strain, add well-beaten eggs, sugar, melted butter, spices, salt and raisins. Beat well. Pour into a greased baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate over, 350 deg. F., for 35 minutes. Chill. Yield: six servings.

In 1945 I was discharged from harm than good, in that it made because of migraine me aware of the power of mind, and which I am able to use only in negative ways. For example, if negative ways. For example, it anticipate feeling afraid, panic develops. If I become aware of deciding something, the act of deciding becomes terribly difficult. Once I was a helpful friend,

The doctor says that this will probably go on for several years, then an adjustment may be made, whether for good or ill she didn't say; but she frankly stated that further treatment would e of no avail. Thus you se knowledge of the mind isn't al-ways beneficial; but I would be glad to have your opinion on my case, if you think there is any hope for me. F. R.

OUR ATTITUDE IN THIS MATTER

Dear F. R.: My referrals to psychiatry and analysis don't mean that I naively assume this type of therapy will cure every case treated; or that it holds the remedy for every emotional illness. Not at all. Mental hygienists aren't gods or magicians. They are merely human beings, some greatly gifted at healing, some middling successful, and some stupidly un fit for the task of treating emo-tional disorders; and these last indeed do more ham than good, as they ladle canned theory, for lack of relevant insight and personal wisdom to offer. Maybe you've been dealing with duffers, or at least one.

FEELS ADRIFT FROM HUMANITY

Your conviction of having been bogged down in awareness of a self-punishment pattern doesn't make sense to me. But your short-term inmprovement always experienced at the start of ana ysis suggests that inner isolation from humanity is the core of your misery, so that a tentative excursion into psychological intimacy brings a lift of relief-soon followed, however, by a terrified ("conditioned") impulse to duck back into isolation again. In the hospital experience, you vere more or less a centre of numane attention, of benign in terest, which similarly eased the "isolationist" terror, and held panic symptoms in abeyance until you left, and became again a lone wolf in a world of unified men, as it seemed to you. There is hope for you when you turn your attention outward to life and really work for "be to life and really work for "be-longing," not letting anguish or terror hold you back. To get a line on what alls you, and the remedy for it, read Ashley Mon-tagu's epochal little book "On Being Human."— pubblished this year by Henry Schuman, New year by Henry Schuman, New York City.

U.S. Defence Draws On Manpower

Barring unusual switch in plans, U.S. armed forces will have total strength of 2,644,000 by July, 1951. Longrange manpower goal may be even larger than 3,000,000 figure mentioned by President Truman in recent radio talk. Newschart above compares strength of armed forces after outbreak of Korean war with anticipated strength by next July and with tentative long-range goals for each of services.

Esquimalt Needs Five New Hydrants,

Says Fire Chief Esquimalt's Fire Chief Gilbert Stancomb says he needs five additional fire hydrants and one new standpipe.

In a report placed before the municipal council Monday night, the chief said he deemed hy-drants were needed at Munro and Armit; Lyall and Nelson; Lyall and Foster; Lampson and Devon-shire, and at Grafton and Beatty. He said a new standpipe was wanted on Kingsmill Road.

To install this surface equipment, council was informed, would cost about $1,220. The municipality would not be asked to bear the whole cost; the Greater Victoria Water Board would pay a share, Council decided to determine what the cost to the municipality would be before going into the matter.

Councillor James Ellis, however, thought there should be a hydrant installed near the Muni-cipal Hall. He argued one was needed for protecting the build ing and for firemen's practices.

WOUNDED MEN BETTER John Novak, 70 of 2571 Cook Street, and Anton Konkin, 715 Wilson Street, now in Royal Jubilee Hospital are well on the road to recovery from stab wounds. Konkin will face a charge of occasioning Novak grievous bodily harm when he is well enough.

Hallowe'en Bonfire Ban In Esquimalt

Esquimalt Police and Fire Chief Gilbert Stancomb has ruled against holding a Halloween bon-fire for youngsters on property at the corner of Esquimalt and Admirals roads.

The site was chosen by members of the Esquimalt P.T.A. who are attempting to arrange this year's Halloween party for gsters in the area. Permis-for the bonfire was given by the Esquimalt Branch of the Canadian Legion, which owns the land.

Reporting to Esquimalt Council Monday night, Chief Stancomb said the close proximity of the municipality's shopping and business centre made the pro-posed location of the bonfire un-

The chief suggested the bonfire party could be at Saxe Point Park by the sea.

Other Sidewalks Said Just As Bad

A complaint by R. L. Smith 1072 Colville Road, over the condition of his wooden sidewalk was put before Esquimalt Coun cil at its meeting Monday night.
Superintendent of Works Ed Fulcher, reporting on the matter, informed council the section of sidewalk in front of Mr. Smith's use was not in good condition but was no worse than 90 per cent of the wooden walks in the district. Rector Barred From Commons

From Commons

LONDON (Reuter) — Rev. Godfrey MacManaway, elected by a northern Ireland constituency to the House of Commons, today was declared ineligible to take his seat.

MacManaway, a Church of Ireland clergyman and a Conservative, was elected last February in Belfast.

The 51-year-old parson's right to sit in the Commons was challenged under an 1801 statute barring Church of England clergy from membership.

Mother Of Six Is Chimney Sweep

Thirty-year-old Mrs. Angeline Paradis of St. Vital, in suburban Winnipeg, has the reputation of being Winnipeg's only female chimney sweep. Mother of six children, she says chimney sweeping is easier than house cleaning. She and her husband run a chimney sweeping company.—(CP Photo)

U.N. GETS TRAINLOADS OF RUSS KOREAN WAR BOOTY

TOKYO (UP)—War booty captured by United Nations forces in Korea shows that Russia sent arms manufactured as late as April of this year to North Korea.

There also is ample evidence that Soviet agents continued to play a major role in North Korea long after Russian occupation troops were withdrawn in December, 1948.

Russia has sought to disassociate itself from the Korean war by saying that it has not given military aid to North war by saying that it has not given mintary and to North Korea since 1948.

But while advancing through North Korea with the South Korean 3rd Division I saw stockpiles of new Russian-made burp guns still in preservative grease and bearing a manufacturer's 1950 stamp.

I also saw Russian mine detectors with batteries bearing dates as recent as Feb. 11, 1950, and field pieces made in Russia in April of this year. I saw enough such equipment and weapons made in Russia ce 1948 to fill several railroad trains.

Almost every village and town in North Korea also shows signs of the recent presence of Russians. The best proof of all I saw was in Wonsan, North Korea's biggest east coast city and port.

The Wonsan railroad stations bear two signs, one in Korea and the other in Russian. Most important buildings also are identified in both Korean and Russian.
